BROUGHT HOME BY HIS MOTHER SUNDAY EVENING.

Eighteen-Year-Old Son of the Late Dr. Perkins Dies, Following a Hemorrhage.

The death of George Perkins, aged 8 years, son of the late Dr. George W. Perkins, occurred this morning at about 10 o'clock at the family resience, 2354 Adams avenue.

The young man was brought here rom Denver, Sunday, by his mother and a nurse who has been attending him at a sanitarium there for some time, following his departure from Exeter, New Hampshire.

George Perkins had been attending the Exeter preparatory school for two years in anticipation of entering Harard college, where his elder brother, William, is now spending his first year. George was taken ill last January and, upon his continuing to fail in health, attending physicians advised his immediate departure for a higher altitude and recommended Denver
